

FROM MICLAIN KEFFELER- TO FCC REGARDING 17-108-RESTORING INTERNET FREEDOM

To Whom it May Concern,

I live in Memphis, TN. I am an undergraduate student, and represent a small part of the next generation of working class Americans.

As an avid internet user, I find ways to utilize the internet in my personal, and professional life. To find out that without net neutrality my information could be bought and sold by my Internet service provider was disheartening to say the least. Here I am in the greatest country, and they can't even protect the things I search for. What if I am checking the web for previous work on an upcoming project I am working on? If somebody were to see my records of history they could potentially figure out the idea we have, which would of course not be public news at that time, and steal it from us! God only knows how many BILLIONS OF DOLLARS my company would lose in such a scenario. Do you want American Businesses and American Citizens to be losing money and upset? By repealing net neutrality that is what I am hearing.

Failure to reinstate all parts of net neutrality will prove to me that I am in the wrong country. Maybe my rights don't matter as much as they once did, but I certainly hope that they do.

Cautiously optimistic that the right thing will be done,

MICLAIN KEFFELER

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA